

Q1 2026 Results

Demonstrating commercial agility and safeguarding supply in a volatile environment

Brenntag SE
May 13, 2026

Managing volatility is a strength of our integrated business model

MARKET ENVIRONMENT

- Generally, 2026 began with continued subdued demand
- Demand in specialties stabilizing selectively, dependent on region, end market and segment
- Middle East conflict disrupting supply chains and driving oil-linked price increases

IMPLICATIONS

- Higher oil and feedstock costs, increasing price volatility
- Regional shortages in selected product categories
- Elevated volatility and precautionary inventory build-ups
- Pass-through of higher energy costs (e.g. surcharges)
- Limited visibility on recovery timing and potential demand impacts

FOCUSED EXECUTION

- Leveraging global network and commercial agility
- Ensuring reliable supply in uncertain times based on our integrated business model
- Active management of supply chain and inflation impacts
- Customer and supplier proximity remains key differentiator
- Maintained focus on executing our priorities
- Cost-out program on track

Continued execution of our key priorities independent from market turmoil

I.

Sales

- Adapting methodologies to improve global pricing consistency
- Go-to-market approach, customer proximity and cross-selling in focus
- Dormant customers returning to Brenntag

II.

Clarity & simplification

- Executive Committee operational
- New COO driving network optimization, leveraging synergies
- Continued focus on streamlining of corporate overhead functions

III.

Execution

- Cost-out measures contributing EUR 27m savings in Q1 vs. 2025 base
- Airedale acquisition closed in UK, strengthening our BES EMEA footprint
- Our integrated business model drives value creation in a volatile environment

Middle East crisis underlines value of Brenntag's integrated business model

Jan until Mid-March
2026

- Subdued customer demand at start of the year, in line with our expectations
- Existing conflicts continue to cause high uncertainty in global markets

- Oversupply and high product availability across value chains

- Muted volumes and continued pricing pressure, broadly unchanged vs. Q4 2025

Since Mid-
March 2026

- Middle East escalation increasing pressure on global supply chains

- Emerging product shortages and higher logistics complexity

- Rising oil prices and feedstock availability and costs, driving price volatility

- Force majeure announcements affecting parts of chemical production, esp. in Asia and the Middle East

Brenntag leverages its global network and commercial agility to ensure reliable supply

Q1 2026: Resilient performance driven by margin strength and improving momentum

Sales

EUR 3.7 bn

- 5.1% vs. PY*

Operating EBITDA

EUR 306 m

- 8.3% vs. PY*

Operating Gross Profit

EUR 950 m

- 1.3% vs. PY*

Operating GP Margin

25.9%

+ 0.9pp vs. PY

- Weak demand in early Q1 2026; strong cost and margin discipline mitigate effects
- Improving pricing momentum since mid-March
- Capturing opportunities in disrupted supply chains
- Availability and reliability increasingly outweigh price in the current market
- Brenntag translates volatility into commercial opportunity, resulting in improved gross margins
- Cost-out delivering savings (EUR 27m), partly offset by higher provisions for variable compensation vs Q1 2025

Maintained focus to improve sales, competitiveness and reducing costs

Balance Sheet Strength

- Muted demand environment continued into Q1 2026, improvement since Mid-March
- Strong pricing discipline and supply reliability drive margin expansion
- Operating expenses slightly increasing due to provisions for variable compensation, cost-out partly offsets
- EBITDA decline predominantly reflecting weak demand, positive March trends not overcompensating muted trends in early Q1
- Profit after tax decline in line with overall business development
- Free Cash Flow impacted by rising oil prices driving higher working capital needs

Update on cost-out program

Effects from the cost-out program

vs. 2025 cost base, in EUR m

Brenntag delivered EUR 165m in gross savings in FY 2025 vs 2023 baseline

Key developments

- Cost-out program redesigned to annual targets: new target EUR 200-250m in savings vs 2025 baseline until 2027
- Reduction in central costs of EUR 10m achieved in Q1 2026:
 - Reduction of ~100 FTE
 - Decrease in contracting labor and consulting expense
- General inflationary trends counterbalancing cost-out effects
 - Salary increase
 - Higher energy and transportation costs

Opex development in Q1 2026 signaling positive business trends and cost discipline

Q1 2026 Opex development YoY*

in EUR m

Key developments

- Reported Opex decreased by EUR 20m YoY
 - FX tailwinds of EUR 34m
 - Partially offset by EUR 5m M&A impact
 - Higher bonus provisions vs. prior year
- Underlying Q1 Opex decreased by EUR 6m YoY
 - EUR 27m cost-out program execution
 - Partly offset by Middle East effects, wage inflation run-rate effects, and other inflation
- Overall, Q1 2026 Opex reduction reflects continued cost discipline

Q1 2026: Op. EBITDA reflects continuously muted trend in Jan and Feb, significantly improving trend towards quarter-end

Op. EBITDA development YoY in EUR m

Key developments

- Weak demand in early Q1 2026, partially offset by improving momentum and cost discipline
- Strong prior-year comparables (pre-Liberation Day)
- Closed Airedale acquisition end of Q1 2026, strengthening Brenntag Essentials' footprint in UK
- Continued FX Headwinds
- Organic growth weakness, particularly due to soft volume development in early Q1 2026
- Positive organic EBITDA development in Brenntag Specialties
- Positive pricing trends in Brenntag Essentials
- Cost-out measures partially offset increases in underlying opex

Operating EBITDA guidance 2026 confirmed

Guidance

- Brenntag confirms its Operating EBITDA guidance for the 2026 financial year:

EUR 1,150–1,350 million

- This reflects the currently positive operational performance and the existing uncertainties regarding future demand
- At this stage any negative end-market demand developments from the Middle Eastern crisis are hard to predict
- In the event of a sustained de-escalation in the Middle East supply chains are expected to normalize within 6–12 months

1) Guidance for FY26E is presented on an EBITDA basis, whereas prior year guidance was on an EBITA basis. The change in metric reflects alignment with broader investor and peer reporting practice and a greater emphasis on operational cash-flow focus. Historical guidance is not restated.

2) Guidance takes into account the contributions to earnings from acquisitions already closed and assumes stable fx-rates at the time of the guidance announcement
